November 1985

November winds blow cold with all their might,
And snow will fall to the skiers delight.

Treasure hunters sit by the fire's warm glow,
Researching their books for new places to go.

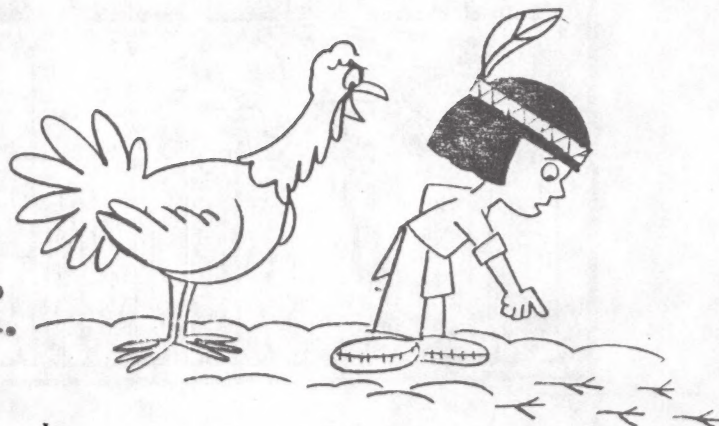

The ghost towns are quiet. The detectors are too.
As we search through the shops for a token or two.

Thanksgiving approaches, it's almost here.
It begins the season that's known for good cheer.

So bundle up warm and don't you fret.
Springtime is coming, it'll be here yet.

Why is it that the later you are, the longer the length of the red light?

A true friend is a person who likes you even when you act like yourself.

The aging process has you firmly in it's grip
if you never get the urge to throw a snowball.

Let's get lucky!

From

The Head Nut

Dear NUTS,

I usually try to start my letters each month on an upbeat note, but this time I can't. On November 4th our editor, Edith Attebury, passed away. Edith became our editor in 1984 and brought with her an enthusiasm and dedication that is hard to find.

My first association with Edith started when I began taking my Wagonmaster articles to her home. Her warmth and personality kept me returning. Soon the visits became more frequent as I helped John with a bit of mechanic work. I always looked forward to talking with Edith. She was always a welcome addition on our digs and her presence was a great asset at our board meetings. I am proud to number her among my closest friends. My prayers go out to her husband and her family. I will miss her very, very much!

This months Token Hunter has been put together by my wife Teresa and myself. We will be taking the Token Hunter until January 1st. Because of work and other commitments we won't be able to handle the newsletter with the attention it needs. So please, please, we are in need of an editor who can devote a few hours each month to the Token Hunter. If you can devote your time place your name in nomination at the November meeting or call me at 250-7052.

Last months meeting was an auction and several tokens were sold at bargain prices. A.N.A. President Florence Shook took time from her busy schedule to attend our meeting and speak to us about the upcoming A.N.A. Convention.

This months meeting is going to be a busy one. Nominations will be made for 1986 officers. Mary Macky, Hospitality Chairman for the A.N.A. Midwinter Convention will be speaking to us and asking for your help at the convention. We want our Society to be well represented and this will be an excellent opportunity for us to participate. Last, but not least, our main speaker will be Doug Wright. Doug is going to talk to us about the Eureka area. Doug is very knowledgeable about this area. He is a collector of Tintic District tokens and memorabilia. He owns a home in Eureka and is a member of the Tintic Historical Society. So mark November 21st on the calendar; you won't want to miss it.

Our December meeting will be on our regular meeting night which is December 26th. The meeting will be held at Seaman James Bartly Restaurant. We will be presenting awards. There will be a free drawing and lots of good food and good company. Call Mary or me as soon as you can to make reservations.

If I don't see you at the meeting, have a happy Thanksgiving.

-George-

IN MEMORIAM

Edith Attebury passes away on November 4th from a heart attack she had on the 30th of October. Her funeral was on the 8th and many friends and family were present. Several club members attended the service and John Attebury asked George Wilson and Lance Johnson to be pallbearers.

Our sincerest condolences go to John Attebury and his families. We will greatly miss her in our lives and wish we all had a chance to tell her how much we loved and appreciated her. Edith's magnetism was felt by all she came in contact with and her commitment to follow through was unquestionable. Her blunt honesty will be remembered by all to whom it was aimed for. No one could stand up to this woman and not be humbled by her frankness in speech.

Edith's accomplishments were many in the Nuts organization. It was Edith who made the Token Hunter anxiously awaited to be read by the club members. She had taken over the job early in 1984 and did the best editing we have ever had. She kept us all in line and informed us in the 20 months she was editor. It was Edith who George and I always fell back on to help with our spelling and form of letter content. We always contacted her if something was in the wind and had to be done. She always call members when something important came up and had to get out to the members fast. It seemed we always had to clear it with Edith first and get the okay if everything was going to work. It was Edith who type and formulated the by-laws of the club. She also did the incorporation papers and had a great influence with all official items of club business. It was Edith who did publicity for our 1st Coin and Token Show. She did a special newsletter and all the odd jobs that had to do with the show. She made the club medal/token program work by her follow through. Edith did much to back up all functions of club business and without her and John's help the club would not be as well off as it is today. She will be greatly missed at our meetings.

Edith had many collections that she was always working on. She accumulated bricks with writing on them. Tokens from Utah and Idaho were her interest and especially from Juab and Sanpete counties and southern Idaho around Gooding. She has an Iron collection and bottles, books, miniatures, glass everything that would be collectable she saved it. Just ask John if she ever threw anything away that he found with his metal detector. She went to shops, stores, swap meets, yard and garage sales to feed the monster that made her save a piece of history and preserve it for future generations. She was a purest - she collected anything that used to be useful.

On the club outings in which we all went digging for treasure, Edith always had John pop-up the table on side their trailer to pile the masses of interesting junk that John and her would find. They always had the most and it was the gathering place to share the experiences of the hunt and excitement of treasure that was forgotten in time. She always was there to talk and listen plus add her opinion on the treasure that you found and what it was used for. The times we spent around the camp fires I'll always cherish forever. The stories were tall and the bull was deep but we sure had a lot of laughs.

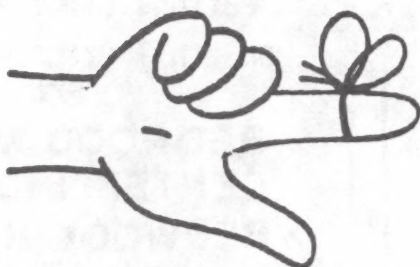

Edith was involved with many organizations and clubs. She was always giving of her time and talent. Everything was for the clubs growth and the building up of you character. She will always be remembered and loved in our hearts because of the love she had for other people. She truly was a giver and not a taker or a complainer. She is the Silver Lady!
